DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 27, 49, 51 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Li (cited ref.).

Li, figs. 3-10 and related text in paragraphs [0027]-[0048] discloses the claimed array of resistance variable memory cells (fig. 10) comprising at least one pillar of stacked material layer on a semiconductor substrate (figs. 3A-3D and related text in [0027]-[0033]), the stacked layers comprise a first electrode 305 and a chalcogenide glass layer 310 having metal (silver) ions diffused therein in contact with the first electrode 305 and being capable of changing resistance under the influence of an applied voltage ([0027]), a metal layer of silver (bottom portion of layer 315) in contact with the chalcogenide glass layer 310, and a second electrode (top portion of layer 315) in contact with the metal layer, the at least one pillar not located within a via (fig. 3D).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 50 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Li in view of Campbell et al. (cited refs.).

Li, figs. Fig. 3-10 and related text teaches the claimed memory cells as noted above, except the use of tungsten for forming electrode.

Campbell et al., in a related art as disclosed in paragraph [0032], teaches the use of either tungsten or silver for forming electrode of the resistance variable memory cells.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have replaced silver with tungsten for forming electrode as suggested by Campbell et al. in Li memory cell structure since the substitution of art recognized equivalent are within level of those skilled in the art.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 2/27/08 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Since there is no distinction between the claimed metal layer and the second electrode that is also a metal; therefore, the claimed metal layer is considered as a lower portion of the metal electrode layer 315 as shown in fig. 3D of Li reference.
